Joe Hamilton, owner and president of Pilgrim's Market, a natural foods store in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, was the focus of an article in the November 3, 2016 Spokesman-Review about growing a market garden on property adjacent to his store. The goal is to supply produce year-round for Pilgrim's salad bar, juice bar, and deli. "The Pilgrim's market would be a showcase for do-it-yourself urban farming using the latest technology to stretch the Inland Northwest growing season, from innovative hoop-style greenhouses to geothermal heating," Hamilton said. Joe Mornin is both a new lawyer and a tech entrepreneur. As a recent graduate from the University of California at Berkeley Law School, he has created a free app called Bestlaw that boasts 16,000 registered users. In a recent interview with The Law Insider, Joe said, "There's a hacker mindset that says: 'this seems broken; I think I know how to fix it, so I'll just give it a try.' Lawyers could benefit from thinking more like hackers." Read the full interview at www.sgs.org/magazine.

Logan Guy is a Senior Financial Analyst with the Argo Group in Texas. "While I only attended Saint George's for my senior year, I learned more in that one year both academically and about myself than I did in the prior 11 years of public education," he says. He co-manages a $4.2 billion investment portfolio for a Bermuda-based specialty insurer and reinsurer. Prior to that he worked at Clear Channel Communications (now iHeart Media) as an analyst for global mergers and acquisitions.

Karl Muelheims '12, flanked by brothers Erik '14 and Gerhard '10, produced a record-setting season to lead the Whitworth University soccer team's offensive attack. He set a new single-season school record with 21 goals and added three assists for 45 total points. Muelheims netted three hat trick performances during the season for the Pirates, and his eight game-winning goals tied for most in the nation. He also ranked among the top 15 nationally in total goals, total points, goals per game and points per game.

In Memoriam

Margaret (Ringrose) Kelley '65

passed away in late November 2015. She attended Whitman College, earned a degree in Physical Education from Washington State University, and received an M.A. in Education from Gonzaga University. "Margaret was a teacher, a mentor, a sportswoman, a gardener, a seamstress, a craftsman, a chef, an athlete and so many other wonderful things," says her obituary in the Spokesman-Review. An avid quilter, she made numerous quilts for charitable causes, including for military veterans through the Quilts of Valor Foundation.

ed. Al, her husband of 25 years, says that donations can be made in her memory to the Lupus Foundation (www.lupus.org/action/join-the-fight).

Robert J. "Jeff" Aho '88

the class valedictorian, passed away on October 3, 2015 from injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

A native of western Canada who grew up in Spokane, Jeff went east "to attend Williams College on a full scholarship to study political science," according to an article in the Greenfield Recorder. "He worked as a teacher, contractor and restaurant manager before teaching himself computers and working as an information technology coordinator." Jeff and partner Jessica Van Steensburg also owned the "We Can Farm" in Heath, Massachusetts. Go to www.sgs.org/magazine to read the full article about how their community has supported Jessica since Jeff's death.

Susan Richardson Willert '79

passed away in Phoenix, AZ on June 30, 2015. While she was felled by a stroke and infections, Susan had battled Lupus since her early 30s. A graduate of the University of Washington and Gonzaga Law School, she practiced law in the Seattle area before her health deteriorat-
